By Mike Morosco and Leila B. Salaverria

GEORGE FRANCES may have been an unwanted baby but he is not exactly wanting of a mother.

Officials at the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) yesterday said they had received calls inquiring about adoption of the boy, who was found in a trash bag attached to a 12-ft. Air Right from Bulacan to Manila on Sunday.

The boy apparently had been born

Puno admits offers from 'jueteng' lords

Aquino appoints Bacalzo PNP chief

By Christine O. Avendaño and Alvin Papa

A BAR TOMATOCHIL, who was headed a task force that investigated the killings of media people and political activists, has been named the new chief of the Philippine National Police.

Deputy Director General Rod Bacalzo will replace outgoing PNP Director General Juan Puyos, who is retiring from the service index, President Aquino said Monday.

Mr. Aquino's choice was relayed to the media by Assistant Press Secretary Rey Raul. The President is scheduled to attend today's change of command ceremony at Camp Crame.

Bacalzo, a member of Philippine Military Academy Class 1977, used to head Task Force Udy, the body created under the administration of former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, to look into the killings of journalists and political activists.

Bacalzo was to reach the 50th birthday age of 56 in December.

OPERATORS OF "jueteng," an illegal numbers racket, used his friends and even relatives to approach him about payoffs, but Interior Undersecretary Rico E. Puno said he turned them all down.

"Some of them are relatives. Some of them are friends. Some of them are even kin. Some of them are even relatives who approached me," Puno said. "They were all turned down."

Puno disclosed the roles of people who acted as intermediaries between operators and President Aquino in charge of overseeing security matters were accepting at least P2 million a month from jueteng operators.

Gen. head of the People's Crusade Against Jueteng, said on Sunday that five more officials of the Aquino administration were receiving bribes from the operators.

In Malabon, President Aquino said he would ask Puno to explain his statement that he got letters from jueteng operators, but the President appeared skeptical that members of his official family barely three months on the job, were on the

DOLE starts hearings on PAL dispute

By Phillip C. Taylor

■ A UNITED attempt to prevent a strike at Philippine Airlines, labor officials will hold marathon mediation hearings starting today in Pasig City, with no right to demand union.

Liberal Senator Wendell Baldo yesterday said the mediation session between IFA management and the Flight Attendants' and Inwards Association of the Philippines (Inap) would start at 9 a.m. at the National Conciliation and Mediation Board (NCMB).

Among the reasons he discussed are the increasing age and the improved "water" and "dietary" policies covering fish consumption.

"We will try to develop a series of agreements," Nabors said in an interview. "There will be often and counter-offer. We will try to find someone around."

Last week, Frapp filed a series of orders at the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) after its talks with management, which has withdrawn some, but not all, issues.

Under OSHA rules, there is still a 30-day "cooling-off" period, and Harkin said the unusual conditions that a deal could still be reached.

Persons who leave the U.S. and keep collapsed debt management without change to mandatory retirement age of 65 for flight attendants. The union blasted this and other policies as "inequity and pregnancy losses as 'unfair' and 'unjust'."

Trump denounced as "gender discrimination" the union's policy of dropping a fight against him from receiving any salary, allowance or

Mr. Aquino said that his team's decision to settle only had nothing to do with the Aug. 23 bombings targeted at Quires Gonsales, where the police received heavy criticism for handling the investigation and the arrest of Wong King Institute on a bus owned by dismissed former Rep. Roberto Gonsales.

Eight victims and 10 people were killed in the 12-hour standoff.

Mr. Aquino said that he and his team had agreed long before the tragedy that the latter would return this month.

Butler is in charge of improving the investigation capabilities of the PNP. Before being appointed PNP chief, he was deputy chief of operations, the top of the PNP hierarchy.

In the 1980s bar exams, Bacalzo passed 12th.

Before ascending to the PNP's Command Group, the top echelon of the 130,000-strong national police force, Bacalzo worked for the revision of the PNP Criminal Investigation Manual.

Arresting operations

He also served as director for investigation and detection management, where he called for collaboration of the national capabilities of police in Singapore.

In particular, Bacalzo moved to develop the Automated Incident Investigation System that speeds up the identification of suspects through the program.

He also served as head of the Anti-Bomb and Chemical Operations Task Force.

Bacalzo is not without his detractors.

As head of Task Force Unit, he was criticized by militant groups for failing to bring the killings of journalists.

Not their choice

Last month, a group calling itself the "Justice Officers of the Philippine National Police" circulated a "state paper" addressed to President Aquino.

Using what seemed to be an official document of the PNP, the group said it had been in a state of which was sent to Aquino in a letter to the president. But they reportedly appointed themselves as the PNP PNP.

Their demands for Bacalzo were based on criminal and drug cases. They say he was not in line with the PNP's mission and that he should not be in the line of succession.

PNP spokesman Senior Sp. Agente, Cesar said he had read the letter, but would not comment. The document went to senior Bacalzo but he could not be reached.

Bacalzo is a son of former President Ferdinand Marcos.

The Department of Health (DOH) said that the disease, the most of the year, was reported in the city of Manila, where health officials say the disease has been reported.

Dr. Tony Bello of the National Epidemiology Center, said yesterday that a new finding in Malabon was that the incidence of dengue was expected to go down in the year with no dengue deaths reported from many regions.

Because of the falling figures, Bello said there was no need to declare a state of emergency.

Bello said that the disease, which is caused by the dengue virus, is transmitted by the Aedes mosquito, and is common in the tropics and subtropics.

The health is also promoting preventive measures, including regular cleaning of houses, emptying water and other breeding grounds.

Bello has been advised to use window screens, insecticide spraying, and other measures to prevent the spread of dengue.

'Hot money' inflow to favor local currency

By Michelle K. Barro

THE PESO broke into the 43-to-a-dollar territory yesterday, boosted by the improving risk appetite among foreign investors for debt instruments issued from the Philippines and other Asian economies.

The local currency hit an all-time high of 43.99 against the greenback, which ended the week at the highest level since May 2009, before closing at the day's low of 44.135.

The year's trade surplus run down from Thursday's close of 44.12 to 91. Some traders expected that the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas might have intervened in the foreign exchange market to prevent a sharp rise of the local currency, which could hurt the export sector.

Volume of trade reached $1.75 billion, up from $1.51 billion last Thursday.

Traders said the rising reserves of the peso was consistent with that of other Asian currencies, which are being buoyed by a generally favorable outlook on Asia, the region tipped to lead this year's global economic growth.

The outlook for the Philippines in particular was positive because of its strong economic performance so far this year. In the first semester, the Philippine economy grew 7.5 percent, beating most expectations and prompting economic managers to predict that the full-year growth would reach 8.5 percent, with a target of between 5 and 6 percent.

They said the rate of $1 to 43.99 was a good indication of the Philippine government's ability to improve the value of the peso against the dollar.

Air talks with HK, China, Italy readied

By Paolo G. Manocillo

THE GOVERNMENT has laid up a series of talks to allow soon flight between the country and places like Hong Kong, China and even Italy as part of efforts to double tourist arrivals to the Philippines over the next three years.

The Civil Aviation Board (CAB) said negotiations between the Philippines and Japan, the European Commission were likely to begin next month.

Local officials are expected to meet with Wang Kang, secretary to the Chinese government, in Manila, despite the recent deadly bombings killing in Manila that led to a temporary travel advisory to the Philippines.

If it proves fruitful, this will be the Japanese administration's first air agreement.

"We had that debate, but we are looking at this in the long term," CAB Executive Director Carmelo Arellano said in an interview.

Airlines and tourism industry stakeholders have reported a sudden drop in demand for travel to the Philippines as a result of the bombings killing 26, which left eight Hong Kong tourists dead.

"But as soon as the report about casualties subsides, we expect
